MEMORANDUM DECISION

On June 1, 2010, Superior Financial Services (“Superior”) filed a Motion for Approval of a Reaffirmation Agreement seeking the Court’s approval of a reaffirmation agreement (the “agreement”) signed by the Debtor, Kelly Dawn Woods, on May 19, 2010, regarding a 2005 Dodge Durango Truck which Superior had financed for her. A review of the agreement indicates that it contemplates reaffirmation of an indebtedness of $8,251.82 plus interest at the rate of 21.00% per annum in twenty-seven monthly installments of $386.11 per month. The Durango is valued in Schedule B at $8,200, while the Motion before the Court asserts that the value of the vehicle is $14,025. The Motion states that the Debtor was represented by an attorney during the course of negotiation, and lists the Debtor’s monthly income as $2,165.66 and monthly expenses, inclusive of the Durango payment, as $2,153.92. These figures are the same as those represented in the Debtor’s bankruptcy schedules I and J.

A hearing was held before the Court on July 7, 2010. At that time both the Debtor and her attorney, Maria Timoney, Esq., appeared. David Hutton, Esq. appeared on behalf of Superior. At that hearing Ms. Timoney stated that she was unwilling to sign the attorney’s certification with respect to the agreement because of concerns about the Debtor’s precarious financial circumstances. Although the Debtor’s income and expenses indicate that the Debtor, after paying the monthly expense for this vehicle and her other expenses, has approximately $11 of net income leftover, counsel was unwilling to certify that the reaffirmation of this indebtedness would not impose an undue hardship on the Debtor and/or her dependents. Such counsel did not make any contention that she was not representing the Debtor with respect to the agreement. Because Debtor's counsel has declined to certify in light of the Debtor's financial circumstances, the Court concludes that it has no proper basis to consider approval of the agreement.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

This Court has jurisdiction of this proceeding by virtue of the provisions of 28 U.S.C. §§ 1334(a) and 157(a) and the delegation made to this Court by Order from the District Court on July 24, 1984. This matter is a "core" bankruptcy proceeding pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 157(b)(2)(O) in that it involves the adjustment, or at least potential adjustment, of the debtor-creditor relationship and contemplates the debtor's waiver of the benefit of a discharge with respect to a particular obligation when there is no showing, such as is the case here, that there is any valid basis to deny a discharge or except a particular debt from such discharge.

This Court previously ruled<sup>1</sup> that 11 U.S.C. § 524(c), (d), and (k)(5) - (7) do not provide for the Court to approve a reaffirmation agreement when a debtor was represented by counsel during the negotiation of a reaffirmation agreement except in the very limited situation that counsel has certified in his or her opinion the "debtor is able to make the payment" even though a presumption of undue hardship has been established. In such a situation it is the responsibility of the Court to determine whether the presumption of "undue hardship" has been “rebutted to the satisfaction of the court” pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 524(m)(1), and then only if the creditor is not a credit union within the provision of 11 U.S.C. § 524(m)(2). The Bankruptcy Code does not authorize the Court to relieve counsel for a debtor of his or her responsibility under such section when counsel is not willing to certify but the client still wants to reaffirm. See In re Calabrese, 353 B.R. 925 (Bankr. M.D. Fla. 2006). If counsel is not willing to certify in the first place, that is supposed to be the end of the matter and the reaffirmation agreement is not legally effective. As the Court has observed previously, these provisions obviously create a very definite tension between counsel’s role as counselor to his or her client and that of advocate to assist his or her client in accomplishing the client’s lawful objectives. However, the way this section is constructed makes an attorney, in effect, a gate keeper against well intentioned but ill advised reaffirmations of existing obligations, at least in those situations in which the attorney is representing the debtor with respect to such matters. Because Debtor’s counsel has declined to certify here, the Court concludes that it does not have the authority to approve the agreement over such counsel’s exercise of her professional judgment.

However, neither the failure of the Court to approve the agreement with Superior nor the unwillingness of counsel for the Debtor to certify precludes Ms. Woods from continuing to make the payments or Superior from continuing to accept payments on this debt from her. The Bankruptcy Code expressly authorizes such actions. See 11 U.S.C. § 524(l). The Court further observes that Ms. Woods appears to have complied with the mandates of the actions required of her in order to obtain a continuation of the automatic stay pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 362(h)(1) and to retain possession of the Dodge Durango pursuant to § 521(a)(6) as long as she maintains her account in a current status. The Court does not attempt to rule here on what effect its non-approval of the agreement has upon Superior's right, if any, to enforce any bankruptcy "ipso facto" clause which may appear in its contract with the Debtor. See In re Jones, 591 F.3d 308, 311-12 n. 3 (4th Cir. 2010). In the event such creditor should undertake to assert such a right while the Debtor remains current in her payment of the contractual obligation to such creditor, the Court grants leave to the Debtor to request that her case be reopened without payment of the usual reopening fee to seek a determination of the rights of the parties with respect to such contention.

An order embodying the Court's Decision denying Superior's Motion will be entered contemporaneously herewith.

DECIDED this 9th day of July, 2010.
